

Power System Overview

The Stored Solar Power Station system is configured based on the energy output needs and the regional location. The most appropriate solar collection method is combined with a mix of conventional short term storage with longer term hydrogen gas generation and storage. The modular system can be scaled to achieve the desired balance of electricity, gas and hot water requirements.

